Orillia's Dr. Erika Catford named Regional Family Physician of the Year

ORILLIA, Nov. 13, 2018 – Dr. Erika Catford of Orillia has been named a 2018 recipient of the Ontario College of Family Physicians Regional Family Physician of the Year Award.

Nominated by their peers, the award is presented annually to seven Ontario family doctors – one from each region of the province – who provide exemplary care to their patients and are passionately involved in activities that contribute to excellence in family medicine. Dr. Catford is the award recipient for Central East and North Simcoe Muskoka. She will be presented the award at the on November 14, 2018 in Toronto. A list of all awardees is posted on OCFP's website.

“Dr. Catford has been a leader in the community since starting her practice in Orillia,” said Josiah (Si) Lowry, Co-Chair, Mariposa House Hospice. “Her knowledge and understanding of palliative care has been a guiding light for all doctors in Orillia. She has worked tirelessly for the past two years to see the Hospice project through.”

The announcement comes during Family Doctor Week in Canada, which runs from November 12-17, and is an opportunity to acknowledge the vital work family physicians do to help keep Ontarians healthy. This includes working in primary care, hospitals, home and community care, long-term care and public health, as well as in research and academia.

Building a legacy of community activism, medical leadership and inspirational teaching

A central figure in Orillia's medical community, Dr. Catford's family medicine practice encompasses prenatal and birthing care, inpatient medical care, home visits and palliative care for her patients. She has initiated several programs to help patients, including a Health Portal to make booking appointments easier and a Diabetic Program where patients meet quarterly to share questions and results. She served as the Chief of Family medicine at Orillia Soldiers Memorial Hospital (OSMH) from 2015-2017 and was awarded the OSMH Board Award of Excellence for palliative care leadership.

Since 2008, Dr. Catford has helped to develop and improve 30 rural teaching sites in her role as Director of Rural Teaching Practice Program at the University of Toronto. Over 40 family medicine residents have benefited from rotations in her practice; and in 2012, she received the Hollister King Award for excellence in rural teaching. Dr. Catford's passion for providing palliative care led her to champion the building of Mariposa House Hospice – a five-bed residential hospice in Orillia. As co-founder, she obtained provincial funding and land approvals, and kicked off an ambitious fundraising campaign.

“As an inspirational teacher and champion for rural medical practice, Dr. Catford embodies what it means to be a full spectrum family physician,” said Dr. Glenn Brown, OCFP President. “Her advocacy and dedication to improving hospice and palliative care has made her community stronger. It is a pleasure to acknowledge her contributions and achievements through this award.”

OHRC releases Indigenous peoples and human rights dialogue report

+ show tags

November 14, 2018

Toronto – Today, the Ontario Human Rights Commission (OHRC) released To dream together: Indigenous peoples and human rights dialogue report. The report summarizes themes and recommendations from the OHRC's three-day dialogue event (February 21 to 23, 2018), which brought together First Nations, Métis and Inuit ("Indigenous") Elders and traditional knowledge keepers, along with academics, leaders, artists, advocates, lawyers, policy makers, and human rights institutions to discuss a vision of human rights that reflects Indigenous perspectives, world views and issues.

Major themes explored in the report include:

- The qualities of meaningful engagement and reconciliation
- Indigenous perspectives on human rights
- The UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP) and Indigenous peoples' contribution to the evolution of human rights law
- Key Indigenous human rights concerns
- Recommended institutional responses.

The report includes recommendations to the OHRC, other human rights institutions, organizations and governments. It calls for taking concrete actions towards reconciliation and human rights based on values of respect, honesty, sharing and strength. And it will serve as an important resource as the OHRC moves forward with its work on reconciliation.

Quotes

"Colonialism and systemic discrimination have resulted in a human rights system that does not reflect Indigenous perspectives and world views. This report highlights the wisdom of diverse Indigenous people on how to reconcile Ontario's human rights system with Indigenous frameworks, constitutions, processes and laws. It also reinforces our ongoing commitment to realizing the vision of UNDRIP by addressing systemic discrimination in the delivery of essential services." - Renu Mandhane, Chief Commissioner, OHRC

"Indigenous voices were consistent about the importance of seeing human rights in a values-based, rather than proscriptive context. Living a good life - what the Anishinabek call bimaadziwin - is what will lead to what the UN Declaration calls 'the full enjoyment... of fundamental freedoms.'" - Maurice Switzer, Commissioner, OHRC

"Much of Indigenous peoples' advocacy to date has focused understandably on the potential power of section 35(1) of the Constitution Act, 1982. The UN Declaration invites us to frame our advocacy within the discourse of human rights. The OHRC's dialogue produced a thoughtful and nuanced discussion about the intersection between Indigenous laws, Indigenous rights, and human rights.” – Karen Drake, Commissioner, OHRC
